Cotton was buoyant from the very outset yesterday. Liverpool started off nicely and clusion that the crop will be far short of requirements and that with the present shortage there must be either higher prices or a curtailment in demand.

No one who analyzes the situation believes in chean cotton. In fact the great majority talk of 12 cents a pound, and they base their calculations not on theory, but on actual conditions.

The present supply of cotton is small, and the surplus carried over is almost nil. It therefore stands to reason that the spinner se short and he must have the cotton and he must pay for it.

The past decade has witnessed the most wonderful changes. Ten years ago this month cotton was worth 19 cents, and from that point it gradually shrank until 4 15-16 cents in 1895 was the price of middling. There were frequent rallies, because the speculators would occasionally get into the market, but there was at all times a lack of confi-The bears won in every skirmish. They routed the bulls and in their campaign they were reinforced by Neili, Perhaps, had Mr. Neill been more conservauve, the Southern planter and the buyer would both have faced better. the spinner is not pinning his faith entirely to Neill. He has been caught napping and he doesn't exactly know where he is.

For instance, the crop is now estimated to be anywhere between 9,600,000 and 10,000,000 bales. This is certainly a million short of mum estimate, because the trade would adapt Weather reports are anything but favorable. Mississippi is said to be $00.500 balos short. Alabama a crop is cut down, and so is Louisiana's, while in Texas the worthis and storm have wrought have.

Then suppose an early frost should desur. And with the peculiar geasons we have been having the past five years, there is no reason to expect anything but something unreasonable in the way of weather.

COTTON WAS BUOYANT.

New York closing very steady, 20 to 24 up. New Orleans 18 to 20 up. Spots 4 up at New York and New Orleans, unchanged elsewhere. Memphis and Augusta received 9789, against 11,043 last year. Houston and New Orleans estimates 51,000, against 31,000 last year. Cotton has had a continuous advance of about 60 points, bringing the price of the winter months in New York to nearly 10 cents per pound, New Orleans 9% cents. Many well posted people believe these prices high enough, but, on the other hand, there are others who contend that is no event can this crop exceed 9,500,000 bales, and another minimum crop means 12 cent cotton; so may it be. The weekly bureau tomerrow is expected to be builten, as is the monthly report due on the 10th. We believe in buying cotton on any depressions, and would take profits on loans or sell short on any good advance from these prices. Liverpool should be 3 up tomerrow.

New York, October 1.-The week opens resterday. Liverpool started off nicely and the spot sales there were the largest in weeks, being 6000 hales.

The world appears to be reaching the conclusion that the crop will be far short of reparket a dishoult one to operate in.

Operations of Professionals Was Reflected on a Large Scale.

ADVANCED WITH A SHOW OF ANIMATION

The Movement Was Apart from Any Forced Demand from the Short Interest.

New York, October 1 .- The stock market reflected the operation of professional dearers on a larger scale today than for a lo g time past, as a result of the arrival in New York from summer outings of the majority of the more influential element among the The market advanced with a considerable show of animation and strength. The movement was clearly apart from any forced demand from the short interest such as played a large part in the spasmodic upward movements of last week. This was made clear by the comparative heaviness all day of stocks which have shown the most pro-BEANS—Imported may beans 3%c; Bayon

ent. The demand is phenomenal, yet not only are supplies light but it is almost impossible to get the goods with which to supply the demand. Very results to supply the demand. possible to get the goods with which to sunply the demand. Very naturally the storm is partially responsible for the unusually heavy demand, but the great (rouble is that merchants are unable to keep up. As fast as goods come in the storm is goods come in the goods come in they go out and in most instances they are sold before they arrive and are delivered from track.

Texas eggs are slow sale because of the manner in which they are shipped. They are coming in in had condition and the loss in canding is large.

Poultry is higher than for years back. Re-ceipts are light and demand is only mod-erate on account of the high prices asked. M. Allen is receiving cantaloupes from New Mexico.
